

Are drug prices
kept confidential
in Germany?

The Medicines Research
Act from 2024
introduced the option to request reimbursement
prices to be kept confidential.

CONFIDENTIAL

The confidentiality option is available to companies with trials in which at least 5% of the population are from Germany (i.e. the company is conducting research in Germany).

Companies have to accept a mandatory discount of at least 9% on top of the negotiated price to keep the price confidential.

However, already in early 2025, the MoH head of drugs concluded that the confidentiality law was a failure.

FAILED

He predicts, that while confidential prices might make sense in individual cases, the rebate mechanisms are too complex causing too high overhead costs for widespread use.
